

LORENZO BAGNOLI – Curriculum Vitae

Lorenzo Bagnoli (Sanremo, 1968), graduated in Political Science in 1992 and in Geography in 1996 at the University of Genoa, obtaining in both cases the grade of 110/110 cum laude. At the same University, he eventually attended the Postgraduate Course in “International Development Cooperation” at the Faculty of Political Sciences in the academic year 1998-99, and got his PhD in “Geographical-environmental and cartographic sciences” in 2002.

In 2001, he was the winner of the ordinary competition for chairs in Geography at the secondary schools, where he has teaching for 6 years.

In 2007, he won the competition as a researcher in Geography at the Faculty of Sociology of the University of Milano-Bicocca and on April 1st, 2007 he entered his role at the Department of Sociology and Social Research.

Obtained the national scientific qualification of second-level professor in Geography in the first round (2012), he took up service on October 1st 2015 as associate professor in Geography at the Department of Sociology and Social Research of the University of Milano-Bicocca, following a competition.

Obtained as well the national scientific qualification of full professor in Geography in the first quarter of 2016, he took up service on October 1st 2024 as full professor in Geography at the same Department.

Currently he teaches Geography of tourism in the degree course in “STCL-Science of tourism and local community” and Geography of cooperation and development in the master’s degree in “TTSL-Tourism, territory and local development”

His duties in the Department have included: vice-president of the course in TTSL, responsible for the internationalization of the STCL and TTSL courses and of the Department, scientific director of double degrees with Université de Savoie-Mont-Blanc and Universidad Rey Juan Carlos.

He did teaching as an Erasmus visiting professor in many European universities:

Universidad de LasPalmas de Gran Canaria, Lanzarote, Spain
Université de Savoie-Mont-Blanc, Chambéry, France
Tampere University of Applied Science, Finland
Hogeschool PXL, Hasselt, Belgium
Universidad Rey Juan Carlos, Madrid, Spain
Hochschule Mittweida, Germany
Fachhochschule Graubünden, Chur, Switzerland
Universidade de Coimbra, Portugal and was a visiting scholar at the University of Central Lancashire in Preston in the academic year 2019-2020.

He is also vice-president of the ITMN-International Tourism Masters Network.

The main research interests are the geography of tourism, the cartography and the geography of cultural heritage, especially in their historical, political and social aspects.

The complete list of his publications can be found at this link.