Organizer: University of Milano-Bicocca

DESCRIPTION

The webinar address one urgent neuroethical issues at the societal level. What are neurotechnologies? Why do they pose threats to human rights? What is their potential in medicine? And how can their risks be correctly addressed? The webinar will address these questions paying specific attention to the ethical and legal problems posed by neurotechnological innovation

SPEAKER

Silvia Salardi is Associate Professor of Philosophy of Law and Bioethics. She has dedicated the past 15 years to analyse and discuss changes brought about by emerging technologies within medicine and to propose governance pathways to address the ethical-legal questions arising by unprecedented technological innovation.
