

LAKE COMO SCHOOL
OF ADVANCED STUDIES

Summer School 2022

Photo by Eduardo Basto

Preparedness, Health and Environment

May 23-27, 2022

Villa del Grumello, via per Cernobbio 11, 22100 Como (CO) Italy

Preparedness is a key notion for international policy-making in the field of disasters management. The aim of the Summer School is to provide tools to deepen the theoretical dimensions of the concept and to operationalise it, focusing on two key fields: health services and agriculture.

25 participants are expected among brilliant graduate and undergraduate MA students, PhD Students and Postdoctoral Researchers in social sciences, epidemiology, geography, agricultural sciences, ecological and environmental sciences.

Program

Monday, May 23

Welcome and Introduction to the School - Lavinia Bifulco

Opening Lecture: Preparedness and the government of emergencies - Andrew Lakoff

Tuesday, May 24

Being prepared: the sentinel perspective, Frédéric Keck

The "One Health" approach - Fabrizio Bianchi

Wednesday, May 25

Repairing environments: preparedness, agriculture and climate change - Laura Centemeri

Preparedness, governmentality and the politics of time - Luigi Pellizzoni

Thursday, May 26

No preparedness without implementing collaborative right to health, Benedetto Saraceno

The stakeholders' perspective - Labs with stakeholders from the fields of health and agriculture

Friday, May 27

Presentation and discussion of students' projects

ORGANIZING COMMITTEE

Lavinia Bifulco (University of Milano-Bicocca), Laura Centemeri, CNRS, France), Luigi Pellizzoni, (University of Pisa), Carlotta Mozzana (University of Milano-Bicocca), Davide Caselli (University of Milano-Bicocca)

Contact: lavinia.bifulco@unimib.it